Negro History Week Celebrated Here

By JUDY HOROWITZ

Posters, a pictorial exhibit of leading Negro and white figures, displays and a tea honoring the birthdays of Frederick Douglass and Abraham Lincoln attest the fact that this is Negro History Week. Why did a group of Negro and white students decide to celebrate this event?

Negro History Week has been observed since 1926, when the director of the Association for the Study of Negro Life and History, Dr. Carter G. Woodson, inaugurated it. Its purpose was to help win equality for the Negro people through an understanding of their history and a knowledge of their achievements and contributions.

If Negro history were taught in schools, he thought, it would be unnecessary to set aside a special week to acknowledge it; but since most history courses deal very sketchily or not at all with the full history of these 15 million Americans, Negro History Week was established.

Through the education which a Negro History Week program offers, and particularly through the interest it stimulates in this vast field, a truer picture of the Negro people can be formed; a picture which helps break down false stereotypes and focuses attention not only on their past achievements, but also upon their present struggle.

A committee of 27 Negro and white students worked together to gather facts, paint posters, arrange displays and plan a program. They discovered in the process that they had also established warm friendships with each other; by so doing they partially accomplished the real aim of the week.

150 Aid In Orientation Of New S.F. State Students

'53 Program Rated Successful By Committee Head George Poquette

The orientation program, involving approximately 600 freshmen, transfer students, and foreign students, was climaxed by a rally and dance, held in the new campus gym, Tuesday, Feb. 3, according to George Poquette, chairman of the orientation committee.

The orientation program, he said, is designed to acquaint new students with life at San Francisco State and to assist them in coping with the bewildering task of registration in a strange school.

A total of 150 students donated their time to assist in the program. These were headed by Joe Velardo, chairman of registration and orientation, George Poquette, committee chairman, and Pat Wire, in charge of foreign students. They were aided by five assistants, Lorraine Maison, Vivian Rusconi, Lillian Rusconi, Hal Spady, and Dean Stenburg.

The orientation got under way on February 2, at 8:30 a.m., with a general assembly in the Baptist church, in which the new students were welcomed to the school.

They were then directed to various rooms where the incoming students met their advisers. The orientation program was explained, and they were given maps of the two campi. At that time, they made individual appointments for advising and tests.

Onthe following day, Poquette continued, the foreign students were taken on a four-hour tour of San Francisco and the bay cities. That evening, at 7 p.m., a rally was held in the gym of the new campus, so students could become better acquainted with each other and with student body officers.

Music for the rally was furnished by Bob Jones and his combo. Welcoming speeches were made by student body and class officers, and some of the activities of State were outlined.

Entertainment for the rally began with Barbara Ebner singing two songs. Several yells were led by yell leaders, assisted by Gussie and Gertie, the Alligators. Don Van Noy did a comedy pantomime, followed by Rose Marie Rodriquez singing several numbers with her brother.

The rally was highlighted by a hula dance performed by Rachelle and Gloria Reyes, accompanied by Ted Daniels on the electric guitar. Their numbers were done in black light.

The rally was followed by a dance in which the music was furnished by records.

The decorations for the rally and dance were made by Marilyn

Student Talent Wanted For Tour

State's talented students will soon be setting out to provide entertainment for the boys in the service by presenting a variety show entitled "Change of Pace." The Presidio Army base is first on the list of bases to be visited by the State entertainers and the show will be given sometime in the middle of March.

According to Dan Caldwell and Barbara Ebner, co-directors for the camp shows, if the first attempts are successful, the Army will sponsor a tour of the western states to include as many bases as possible.

The production will last approximately an hour and a half and will consist of ten acts. Air transportation is being provided to the camps, and the Army is supplying full insurance for passengers.

Students interested in participating in the variety show are asked to sign up in Hut 4B, stating their name, acts, and approximate lengths of acts.

An audition will be held Friday, February 20, from 2 to 5 p.m. in the Rec Center. The acts will be judged by three faculty members and five veterans. Those acts selected by the judges for the variety show will be informed by mail.

It has been stressed that due to lack of time some of the acts must be refused, but that these acts may be used in State rallies and other school activities.

Alum Home From Korea

Leo P. Hall, a 1950 graduate of San Francisco State college, is returning to the United States under the army rotation system after 19 months in the Far East, including 17 months on the front lines in Korea. He holds the rank of corporal.

FRESHMAN MEET

There will be a freshman class meeting Tuesday afternoon at 1 p.m., in Anderson 210.

According to Dick Laine, president of the Freshman class, plans will be made for the talent show, the Freshman dance, and a picnic.

Charlie Stern's orchestra will provide the musical entertainment, and refreshments will be served in the lobby.

Tickets are now on sale for $1.50 a couple and 80 cents stag. They may be purchased from S.D.G. members.

Dress should be appropriate for Friday the 13th, with hobo and bum outfits accepted—but no barrels, stated member Alice Pappas. Sports clothes may be worn by those who find their wardrobe does not consist of rags.

General chairman for the dance is Nancy Benson — in charge of decorations are Alice Reasower and Joan Ohde.

Assembly

Brief Recess From School For College Program

Classes will be dismissed on both campi for the Spring semester all college assembly to be held next Wednesday, February 18, at 11 a.m., in the First Baptist church.

The 11:00 classes on the old campus and the 10:40-12:30 classes on the new campus will not be held. In addition, the snack bar, the cafeteria, the Gater grill, and the library, will be closed during the assembly hour.

Dr. Alfred Fisk will be the principle speaker. His topic will be "The World Looks to the U. S.A." Dr. Fisk has recently returned from an eight month goodwill tour of India, for which he received the gratitude of both Indian and U. S. officials.

Cec Riley, student body president, will give a short welcoming address to the students. Music for the assembly will be provided by the college orchestra and chorus.

Curtain Rises On Ibsen Play Here

Student Directed 'Wild Duck' Marks First For Dramatists

Representing State's first full-length venture in "theatre in the round," Ibsen's "The Wild Duck" opened a six-performance run in the Band Room (AB9) last night. The central staging process places the stage area in the middle of the room with the audience seated around it; performers reach the stage by walking through the audience to the stage.

"The Wild Duck" sets other precedents in the history of S. F. State Theatre. It is the first standard play to be directed by a student director, and the first Ibsen work produced here.

Ted Samuel, currently functioning as student director, will assume the male lead as well for the February 19, 20, and 21 performances. Dan Whiteside, who originated the role last night and continues in it tonight and tomorrow night, leaves for the army next week. Members of the cast include Joe Carillo, Shirley Chambers, Virginia Chesse, Ed Hosack, Lou Karcher, Dion Chesse, Mary Ann Hackett, and Karen Lagergren.

Director Samuel, who has studied at the Pasadena Playhouse and appeared in several productions here at State, describes the play as ". . . a landmark of drama and realism in the theatre. Few plays have the real emotional and intellectual impact that this universal study in truth, illusion, and human frailty has."

Samuel sees "The Wild Duck" as the story of ". . . a frustrated idealist whose search for truth and freedom from deceit leads to the destruction of a family and the tragic death of a child. But more than this dramatic framework, and beyond the intense emotions of the plot itself, arise the questions of reality and human weakness. Ibsen's analysis of the question of whether there can be any compromise with reality is a thorough and telling one . . . his brilliant style is an emotional experience for every new audience."

Tickets for performances tonight and tomorrow night and for next week's final trio of showings are on sale at the Drama box office, AA11, 60 cents to student card holders, 90 cents to non-card holders. The box office is open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily. Curtain time is 8:30 p.m.

'Marxists Tolerated'

Education Board Member Attacks S.F. State Standards, 'Atmosphere'

Conversation over the coffee cup has been buzzing for the past week about the charges leveled at San Francisco State by members of the San Francisco Board of Education.

It all began when Attorney Joseph Alioto, board member, said of the school that it has "the kind of an atmosphere where a Marxist would be tolerated—as some have been . . . If there is an atmosphere in any teaching center that isn't hospitable to the political concepts of the U. S. Constitution, I don't know why we can't say it."

Mr. Alioto also charged that State "emphasizes progressive education to the exclusion of a system that stresses development of basic skills under a disciplined course of instruction."

LOW STANDARDS

Mr. Levison, another member of the Board of Education, challenged the educational qualifications of State in a statement concerning the report presented to the board. Levison said, "I'm wondering whether the students there are as well educated as they should be. The qualifications to get in, to stay in, and to graduate, apparently are not anywhere as high as in the universities."

Levison also pointed out that the teacher-student ratio at State was too high, higher than at U. C. or Stanford.

LEONARD ANSWERS

President Leonard has answered the charges point by point. "We have nothing to hide," he said. "I have stated that I know of no communists on the faculty and I am not fearful of finding any subversives," he continued. "In the event no charges are made against any faculty member, and none have been made, we will have to consider it another unfounded smear attack."

In regard to the charge that "a Marxist would be tolerated," President Leonard stated that before any person is admitted to the faculty, a thorough study is

2. If application is accepted, the Air Force will arrange for you to take a physical examination.
3. Next, you will be given a written and manual aptitude test.
4. If you pass your physical and other tests, you will be scheduled for an Aviation Cadet Training Class. The Selective Service Act allows you a four-month deferment while waiting class assignment.

Orientation Plan A Success, Says Chairman Poquette

Jensen, Joyce Lavin, Pat Jellette, Diane Martin, and Don Renner.

On Thursday and Friday, the anticlimaxical advising and registration was completed.

"In all, the orientation program was a terrific success, and I can't thank the people enough who made it so," stated Poquette. He also said that orientation will be held again next semester, along with Frosh camp.—Bob Horn.

made of his recommendations and record. If there is any doubt, a second study is made by the investigating staff of the State Department of Education. This board also investigates any charge made against a member of the faculty.

CHRONICLE COMMENTS

An editorial in the San Francisco Chronicle, Sunday, February 8, stated "The processes (of screening the faculty) appear to us to constitute all that can reasonably be done without invoking Gestapo procedures and thus destroying the atmosphere essential to the pursuit of truth."

Dr. Leonard said that, "the term progressive education is vague, and has many different meanings, but we don't advocate turning the school over to the children, if that is what is meant." As for not teaching basic skills, Dr. Leonard stated, "We teach basic skills such as oral English, written English, music, art, . . . and we try to teach the students how to get along in the world."

HIGH QUALIFICATIONS

"The qualifications," said Leonard, "are as high at State as they are at the universities, and in some cases our requirements are set higher than the required minimum."

Dr. Leonard expressed regret that the teacher-student ratio at State is so high. He said that he has gone before the Legislature in attempts to have it lowered, but that so far they have done nothing about it.

The San Francisco News printed an editorial on Thursday, February 5, saying, "(Alioto) should produce that evidence at once or withdraw the charges . . . otherwise his statement at Tuesday night's meeting of the board must be considered only another of the numerous smears designed to create the impression that educational institutions are hotbeds of communism."—Bob Horn

Elks' Offer 50 Scholarships For Teachers Of Cerebral Palsied

By DALE TUSSING

The California Elks Association is offering 50 $300 scholarships in the field of Special Education in the study of work with the cerebral palsied.

These scholarships are in addition to those offered by the California Congress of Parents and Teachers for $1000. The C. C.P.T. scholarships were reviewed in an article in the last issue of the Golden Gater.

The Elks' scholarships include 10 for the area of speech correction for the cerebral palsied, 15 for teachers preparing to go into the field of cerebral palsy, and 25 for teachers already employed in the field of cerebral palsy.

The scholarships may be used at any authorized college in the country. San Francisco State college is one of the colleges at which the scholarships may be used.

ELKS' SERVICE

The Elks' work on a service basis for cerebral palsy all over the United States, on a national and a local level.

Dr. Mabel Brenn Whitehead, State college representative for the scholarship program, stressed the need for physio-therapists and occupational therapists.

"The scholarships are there." Dr. Whitehead said, "and the Elks will welcome applicants."

The San Francisco State program for Special Education is nationally recognized. The school is the only one in the western United States employing a full-time staff in the field.

DEGREES OFFERED

State gives a Master of Arts degree in Special Education, teacher certification in the several areas of the field, special subject supervision, and/or adjusted programs for out-of-state and special students.

Despite the number of scholarships offered in the fields, and despite the urgent appeals of workers in Special Education, only 450,000 of five million exceptional children in the United States receive the advantages of Special Education.

In response to the need, the Elks have also furnished a mobile unit to tour California to areas in which service for therapy is not available. They supply physio - therapy occupational therapy, and speech training for the palsied in cooperation with clinics or with the children's own physicians.

Applications for the Elks scholarships should be sent to Mr. Howard Libster, Major Project Committee, California Elks Association, 2508 J street, Sacramento, California.

S. F. State students applying for the scholarships should first see Dr. Whitehead, Frederic Burk 117.

Deadline for applications is March 1, 1953.

(This is the second in a series of articles on the divisions of the college, designed to better acquaint students and faculty with the educational activities of San Francisco State college. Next week: The Social Science division.)

A SAGA, YEA, VERILY...

The Tribulation and Exodus of Zerk

By KEITH PINCKNEY

NOW it came to pass in the second year of the reign of the mighty Eph D'Ahr and in the fifth year of the Great Depression that a man child was born in the Land of Oaks unto Samuel Zerk and unto Phyllis, his wife. And they did rejoice greatly and did call the infant Herkimer, in honor of his great uncle Herkimer Hanks, who had much of this world's goods.

And the child grew and waxed strong and ruddy and was a pleasure to all who knew him. And the boy gazed about him at the fair Land of Oaks and was glad that he, Herkimer Zerk, did abide therein. And he said in his heart that some day when he was grown to a man's estate he would become a teacher of the young of the land and would help them to know of the beauty of their country and of the grandeur of their country's story.

But Herkimer's father did desire that his son become a butcher, for all the butchers of his knowledge did wax fat on the moneys of those who came to buy from them. And Herkimer's mother desired that the boy become a doctor, for doctors were well thought of and honored by all. Besides, did not two out of three of the fine palaces shown in the picture magazines belong to doctors? Yea, verily, the life of a doctor was of the best.

Nevertheless, Herkimer stood firm and would not follow the dictates of either his father or of his mother. "Lo, these years of my youth have I sen and noted and observed, and the powerful one in the nation is the one who forms the ideals and habits and skills of its children. I would that I might have a part in this noble undertaking."

"Maphap she will ease this soreness within my soul."

So for 12 long years Herkimer did study diligently and well. And he did get grades of quality, so that any college in the country would welcome him within its portals. But Herkimer would have none of them. He took his sheepskin unto the college that was known as San Francisco State, in honor of that fair City by the Gate of Gold.

Now there was in this place a tradition of exceeding oddness, for the masters of the college of Herkimer's choice did make grevious rules against those students whose names began with the latter letters of the alphabet. For these poor creatures were not allowed to register when classes could be obtained, but rather were forced to wait until some one in Authority could say, "Nay, thou canst not enter. That class is closed." And yet they would also say wrathfully, "Thou shalt not graduate until thou studiest certain required courses. For such are important in the training of youth."

But Herkimer did argue greatly with those instructors, and did quote the prophet of old who said, "And they that were last shall be first."

S.F. State Soccer Player Cops Award

Charlie Andrews, right inside on the 1952 Gator soccer squad, has received honorable mention for all-American honors in soccer. This would rate Andrews as fifth in the nation in his position.

Coach Art Bridgeman, who was at the helm of the S. F. State team during the recent season, called Andrews a utility man rather than a strictly one position player.

The third player in S. F. State history to receive the all-American award, Andrews now ranks with State soccermen Pete Holmes and Owen Kashaveroff who have previously taken the honor.

Charlie Andrews is a transfer from C. C. S. F. and has performed for the Gators for two years. He will not return next season. During his two years at S. F. State he has played in the All-Star game twice and has garnered all-conference honors once, this past season as a senior. The selection system is nationwide in scope with coaches and referees voting in every game played in order to determine the outstanding performers in every contest.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

THE BOILER ROOM

Dear Editor:

On behalf of the faculty and administration of the college, we would like to take this means of expressing our sincere thanks to all of the old students who worked so ably on the Orientation and Registration program just completed. I hope that all concerned realize what a vital job this is in the operation of the college.

Registration would be a far more complicated process without this help, but of greater importance is the value of these activities to new students. That they become familiar with the old students and faculty and with the operations of the college in a minimum period of time is urgent, if they are to make effective use of their time in the college. You old students who know the ropes have helped immeasurably in making this possible.

Particular tribute should be paid to Joe Velardo, Alice Pappas, George Poquette and Francey Lageson for the leadership which they displayed.

Again, our warm thanks.

Sincerely yours,

Dr. Robert Steward: Psychology Professor Contemplates His Existence in an Iron Lung

By RUTH WOODS

From an iron lung at Highland hospital in Oakland a genial State professor greets his many daily visitors. This associate professor of psychology was teaching at State three short months ago.

Dr. Robert S. Steward was informed that he could expect to spend at least a year in the hospital. A whole year of his life had been planned for him. Realizing this, Dr. Steward began contemplating the long period of immobility before him.

SUICIDE

He stated, perhaps with tongue-in-cheek, that suicide was among his first thoughts. This was eliminated when he realized that he could not stick his foot in the door of the lung if it was opened, because he is paralyzed.

Not content to consider this the only method, he next thought of starving himself. He realized the doctors would find a cure for starvation by feeding him intervenously, so he discarded that aspect; besides, he "likes the breakfast."

His futile mental attempts at suicide turned him to thoughts of spending the entire year in melancholy; however, that would make the year drag.

Today, Dr. Steward retains the same jovial personality which was admired by his former students.

He refrains from talking about the functions of the lung itself, feeling that any professor of biology can explain the mechanical part of the machine.

The 1947 addition to State's faculty said he wants recovery of his breathing and use of his right hand, the latter so he can feed himself, scratch his nose, which itched at the time of the interview, and for other reasons obvious to anyone who has ever been a patient.

SENSE OF HUMOR

Adjusting the mirror is one of the difficult problems a visitor faces when calling on an iron lung patient. At one visit several of Dr. Steward's guests tried, without effective results, to straighten the mirror so everyone could see. Witily, Dr. Steward, who was in no position to do anything, remarked, "Why must polio patients be so smart and their visitors so dumb?"

In a letter to the faculty Dr. Steward wrote, "I find that with a sickness like polio, one, or at least I, becomes exceedingly sentimental. And all the letters and good wishes that have come from so very many people seem to produce copious tears, because it makes me feel so good to have so many friends . . .

"Polio doesn't hurt, so I hope that nobody is feeling too sorry for me. I would call it, for an adult, a philosophical disease. You have to reexamine your previously understood concepts of time space and feeling. Reality shrinks and becomes the four walls surrounding you, being fed, bathed and bed-packed. You look down a long, long tunnel and there is the future, which is genuinely bright, because it holds more activity. Then you realize that you don't know when you will get there, although you know you will get there, and so you live in the present and it can be done very successfully. . ."

The victim of one of California's gravest polio epidemics received his M.A. at the University of Wisconsin, and his A.B. and Ph.D. at the University of California.

GRANT'S TOME

By HAL GRANT

Do you want to stay in college?

Of course you do! So here's just how to do it.

■ Bring the professor newspaper clippings dealing with his subject.

This demonstrates your fiery interest and gives him timely items to mention to the class. If you can't find clippings dealing with his subject, bring in any clippings. He thinks anything deals with his subject anyway.

■ Look alert. Take notes eagerly.

However, if you must look at your watch during class, don't stare at it unbelievingly, and don't shake it. This distracts the professor.

■ Nod frequently and murmur, "How true!"

Now, to you, this may seem quite exaggerated, but to the professor, it's quite objective.

■ Sit in front, near him. (This applies only if you intend to stay awake.)

If you are going to all the trouble of making a good impression, you might as well let him know who you are, especially in our large classes.

■ Laugh at his jokes.

It's easy. You can tell when you're supposed to laugh. If he looks up from his notes and smiles expectantly, then he has told a joke.

■ Ask for outside reading. Don't worry, you don't have to read it, just ask for it.

■ If you must sleep, arrange to be called at the end of the hour.

This is quite important, because it creates unfavorable impression if the rest of the class has left and you sit there alone, snoring.

■ Be sure the book you read during the lecture looks like a book from the course.

■ Ask any questions you think he can answer.

He will take great pride in answering your questions. Conversely, avoid announcing that you have found the answer to a question he couldn't answer, and in your brother's third grade reader, at that.

■ Call attention to his writings.

This produces an exquisitely pleasant experience connected with you. If you know he's written a book or an article, ask in class if he wrote it. He will be delighted to elaborate.

If you follow this comprehensive plan to stay in school you probably won't learn much, but it is very likely that you will graduate.

COLLEGE STUDENTS ARE ALMOST AS DIRTY AS PEOPLE

S. F. State Joins In TV Series

San Francisco State is branching out further into the world of television. Already several members of the staff are appearing regularly on TV, and now representatives of the college have been asked to appear next month in a series of programs sponsored by Dr. Vaughn Seidel, county superintendent of schools for Alameda county.

The series, which features colleges of the Bay Area, is written and produced for prospective college students. It will present the academic requirements and the social and academic life of the various schools. The shows are being produced by Mr. Edward Dolan.

The television productions will be filmed and a copy of the film will be sent to the college and another to the Alameda County School board. The films will then be shown in Bay Area high schools and junior colleges, thus insuring a wide audience.

'Zerk': Last in War, Last in Peace, and, Hence, Last in the Lines of Registration

"It would be fairer," spake he, "to let those who had names in the last half of the alphabet start registering first next term. Know ye not that many hardships are visited upon those of us who sign up for classes late? Because the dog-eared copies have long been sold, we must always purchase new text books, costing much gold, and our purses grow limp as the morning glory under the noon day sun. Never can we have classes in the cool of the day; hence afternoon jobs are not open unto us. Our money floweth away and cannot be replenished."

But the masters became exceeding wroth and did pluck their beards and gnash their teeth in anger, saying, "It is also said 'To them that hath shall it be given.' Thus hath it ever been and thus shall it be until the blue water of our inland sea be covered with ice."

IN this manner the summers and the winters came and went until three years had passed, and still Herkimer had not been admitted to many classes which he needs must have had. And he grew more bitter with each passing term.

One afternoon as he sat in the library at study he saw a maiden of surpassing comeliness. And he said in his heart, "I must know that fair damsel. Mayhap she will ease this soreness within my soul."

So he spake softly unto her and he said, "Art thou a stranger in our midst, for never have I seen thee before. Yet thou art studying Psych., which I long have desired to learn about. Who art thou, lovely maiden?"

And she did look upon him with favor, for he was a comely youth, straight and sturdy as the redwood, with shiny hair and white teeth. And she answered him in this wise, "I know not why thou hast not long ago learned these lessons. Art thou not upper division? I am Annabel Anderson. What is thy name?"

And the young man did quail in his shoes, for he remembered that his name, being at the end of the alphabet, was a disgrace and a shame. So he lied in his teeth, and spake thus, "My name is Albert Adams, and I would fain know thee better."

"Couldst endure that they should suffer as thou hast?"

So they two went to and fro together, but the young man kept separate from all who formerly had known him, lest Annabel should discover his deception. For he knew that he loved the fair Annabel, and that in good time he must confess his lie.

When he asked her to wed and told her his real name, Annabel grew white as the lillies that grow upon the still water. "I love thee also, Herkimer," she whispered, "but I cannot marry thee. If we should wed, we might have sons and daughters. Couldst endure that they should suffer as thou hast? It is much worse to watch loved ones be abused than to bear abuse oneself."

Still Herkimer did plead his case most vehemently; yet Annabel answered him, "Nay, Herkimer. I shall marry Aaron Acker, for he hath wooed me, lo, these many weeks. Besides, his name hath found favor with the masters of State, and so shall his children after him."

Herkimer shuddered as he gazed down the desolate road which would be his life's pathway. His strong resolution broke under the strain. He smote the table a mighty blow, so that the books and the ink bottles did leap with the jar thereof. "I shall relinquish my dream," he cried. "I shall go forth into the marts of trade. There will I support thee in the style to which thou hath been accustomed. These halls shall know me no more."

So Herkimer apprenticed himself unto a plumber, and gathered about him the tools of his trade—the blow torch and the pipe wrench and the waste line auger, which cleanseth the clogged drains.

And many of the populace needed him sorely and did call upon him for succor. And when he had quieted their dripping faucets or opened their drains, they did reward his diligence and skill with much gold.

And Herkimer and Annabel prospered greatly and had fine possessions. Their dwelling was pictured in the slick magazines, and their daughters and sons were written about in the society pages. Oftimes they traveled in far away places, buying painting and tapestries and jewels and other articles of adornment. And Annabel was garbed in rich fabrics and wore robes of soft fur about her shoulders. And they were exceedingly happy.

But at times when Herkimer rode to his place of business in his crimson chariot called Cadillac, he hight hear the school bell ring or see the throngs of children on their way to be taught. Then he would remember his lost dreams of long ago, and his heart would be sore within him.

S. F. State Dropped Twice By Sacramento Hornets

Continuing their recent losing ways, the San Francisco State Gators dropped their fourth and fifth straight games as they went down to defeat before a fast-moving Sacramento Hornet squad.

The Gators were the victims of a 59-42 lacing Friday, February 6, but came back strong in the Saturday contest, only to lose to the Hornets in the last 10 seconds of play. Forward Joe Geyer of Sacramento was fouled by Charlie Miller and bucketed both of his gift tosses to give the Hornets the game, 54-52.

The Gators take their 11-7 record to San Luis Obispo tonight and tomorrow night to vie with Cal Poly in effort to shake off their winless streak.

The Gators were never in the Friday contest, from the opening whistle, although they did grab the lead for a few short seconds in the second quarter. John Burton hit from the side with a two-handed push shot to boost the Gators into a short-lived 11-10 lead which was soon wiped out. The Hornets came right back down the court to again put the Sacramento squad in front and they were never headed.

The Friday contest started as a low-scoring affair with the score at the close of the first period at 11-8, and the halftime margin 23-15 with the Sacramentans on top both times.

However, the team from the capitol city really opened up after the intermission, scoring 24 points in the third quarter to spurt to a 47-26 lead, sewing up the contest for the Hornets. The fourth quarter was highlighted by the short trip Gene Busby took on the back of one of the Sacramento team members.

The Gators made a game of the second contest as they fought the Sacramento team right to the wire. With the two decisions over the Gators under their belts, the Hornets can boast an 18-3 record, the best independent record in northern California.

Charlie Miller, who fouled the Sacramento State man in the Saturday contest also heroed for the S.F. State team as he netted 10 field goals and two gift tosses to grab scoring honors for the game. The imperturbable Joe Geyer, who sank the two free throws to give the Hornets the decision, was high-point man for the Sacramento squad with 13 markers.

INTRAMURAL NEWS

By HAL GRANT

Signups for Intramural speedball are now being accepted according to Director of Intramurals, Bill Harkness. Teams tentatively entered in the speedball race are Delta Phi Gamma, Sigma Pi Sigma, Alpha Zeta Sigma, Beta Chi Delta, AFROTC, and Tri-Omega.

Organizations affected by the new "platoon system" ruling may enter two teams in competition for the All-Sports trophy.

Thursday, February 18, at 12:30 p.m., Alpha Zeta Sigma, speedball champs for the past three years, will vie with Kappa Omega, last year's runner-up, in an exhibition contest. This game will afford the neophyte speedball fan a chance to get acquainted with the rules of the game.

The intramural team managers council ruled that six events would count in the Spring All-Sports contest at a meeting last week. Those events are softball, volleyball, speedball, horseshoes, badminton, and a track meet (in connection with the State Fair).

With part of the Air Science and Tactics department now out at the new campus we would not be surprised to see some top flight AFROTC intramural teams.

Behind The Bench

WITH KEITH PINCKNEY

Comments heard in the stands at Friday night's S. F. State-Sacramento State game were extremely interesting. Student observers noted that the Gators failed to resemble in any noticeable way a team, as such. The game seemed to take on the atmosphere of every man for himself.

The S. F. State squad really fell apart in the third quarter, allowing the Hornets from Sacramento to score easily and often. The Sacramento team netted 24 points as opposed to the Gator's 11 in the unhappy third period.

OFFICIAL TROUBLE

It was with interest that we learned that the Athletic Director at Sacramento State college was on the floor officiating during the second Sacramento-S. F. State game. Ned Kay, head of the capitol city college athletic department, acted as referee in the contest. No reflection on Kay's ability as an official is being implied, and Mr. Kay's officiating that night was no doubt excellent. However, if Joe Verducci or Dean Cox were to preside at a game in the Gator gym, the squawks could probably be heard clear to the halls of the capitol building in Sacramento. Again incidentally, two fouls called on the Gators in the last 30 seconds of the game in which Kay was an official cost the S. F. State team and Coach Dan Farmer a close decision.

TRACK COACH CALLS FOR MORE CINDERMEN

Although 40 men are already out for practice, Track Coach Ray Kaufman yesterday issued a call for more.

Trackmen, with or without experience, are welcome to sign up, he said. All equipment is provided and one unit may be earned in P.E. 73.

Among the several veterans returning this spring are Jim Shettler, last year's "Trackman of The Year;" Bob Lualhati, a 49.8 quarter-miler, and Len Posey, the holder of the S. F. State 220 record.

Matmen Defeat San Quentin

The San Francisco State wrestling team appeared headed toward a successful season as the State grapplers vanquished a fighting San Quentin squad, 20½ to 6½.

The matmen take on the Bay Area YMCA in a match at the S. F. State gymnasium at 8:00 p.m. tonight.

The S. F. team swept the 157 pound weight division as both Richard Fiore and Clair Parsh won their matches. Fiore won by a pin in two minutes of the second period and Parsh by a 2-0 decision. The State squad went on to gain the title in the 167 pound division as Raymond Nelson took a 2-0 decision in the final match of the day.

The first match found the Gators' Phillip Lyons battling to a draw in the 135 pound division, while in the same division, Fred Duarte pinned his opponent in one minute and 25 seconds of the first period.

Other officers elected were Sam Laird, vice-president; Helga Wolfheimer, recording secretary and treasurer; and Irene Agorastas, corresponding secretary.

Chairmen named to head the four CAA councils are Bob Haas, Interfaith; Hal Grant, Honorary; Jack Van Noy, Inter-fraternity-Inter-sorority; and Charlene Thompson, Professional groups.

Dr. Brink, Mr. Nichols, Miss Bunnell, Dr. LaPore, and Col. McCarthy were elected faculty sponsors of the CAA.

President Flynn reminded all organizations that $1.00 semester dues are now payable.

The next CAA meeting will be Tuesday, March 3, 1953, in CH 109.

Radio-TV Guild's Admission Procedure Now Rescheduled

New admission procedures, a new Board of Directors and a new paint job was the formula for the Radio-Television Guild to start their Spring Semester off with a leap and bound.

The highlighting feature is the revision of the Guild's admission procedure.

The "scoop" as General Manager Sonny Mitchell puts it is this: Any person showing an interest in radio may apply for an apprenticeship. This apprentice may then become a full fledged member by acquiring proficiency in two of the many areas of work in a radio station operation such as acting, announcing, continuity, traffic, engineering and any program broadcast through the auspices of the Radio-Television Guild. An apprentice may also become a member by any other function performed in a station ranging from clerk to janitor.

About the new procedures Mitchell stated: "Anybody showing interest or ability in radio work can quickly become a member by acquiring points for the work they have done. Enough points and with approval of the Board, you're in."

It was also pointed out that any State student can participate in the Guild's dramatic radio productions for outside commercial stations without obligation to become a member.

The first production of the semester is a comedy and tryohts are scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Tuesday night in the radio studios located in AB5. It ordinarily requires three nights to complete each show.

The new Board of Directors who started swinging into action early are Sonny Mitchell (also known as Mitch Vezilich) as General Manager, Dick Orton as Chief Announcer, Ed Stoermer as Educational Director and Dave Valdick as Chief Engineer.

The smell of fresh paint clung throughout the radio offices as the Spring Semester opened signifying that even the paint was new.—S. M.

Faculty Quartet Scholarship Opens

The Faculty Quartet scholarship for $100 is again available for any student showing promise in his chosen field, needing financial assistance.

Students do not have to be music majors.

Application blanks may be obtained in CH 107 and should be filled out and returned by February 27.

IRC TO MEET TUESDAY

The first meeting of the Internation Relations Club will be held Tuesday, February 17, in the Activities room, CH 109, from 12:30 to 2 p.m.

Organization of the semester's activities will be the main topic of discussion.

The purpose of the I.R.C. is to create interest in international relations and new members are invited, announced Andy Bisbee.

Music Federation On Deathbed--- No Organization

Shakespeare would have trouble writing a tragedy to match the misfortunes concurred upon one of the more popular organizations at State college.

The Music Federation, which suffered a severe blow last semester by having its budget curtailed, is today facing another crisis in finding themselves without a Board of Directors for the coming Spring Semester.

It appears that no Music Fed members circulated a petition to run for any of the elected offices thereby causing the oldest on-campus organization to continue without a governing body. All of the terms of the previous officers expired with the conclusion of the Fall Semester.

The last act of outgoing President Ray Farley was to appoint an emergency Board of Directors but a poll of the Music Fed members revealed that this board and the rest of the active membership do not see eye-to-eye.

The Emergency Board, despite this obstacle, is hastily setting up plans for a special election and will be trying to keep the Music Fed from completely folding up before the newly elected officers, if any, take over.

The general concensus of the Music Fed members is that unless something is accomplished soon, there will be a funeral march in Music Alley.—Sonny Mitchell.

DR MADISON TO SPEAK AT SOCIAL WORK CLUB

A report on what social work majors do after graduating from S.F. State will be given by Dr. Bernice Madison at a meeting of the Social Work club.

The meeting is set for Tuesday, February 17, at the Red Cross building, 1625 Van Ness avenue, from 8 p.m. to 10 p.m.

Elections of officers will precede Dr. Madison's report. The speech is based on a study now being completed.

New Rules For Use Of A.S.S.F.S.C. Billboard

"The A.S.S.F.S.C billboard at the end of annex A will be used only for publicity having to do with associated students activities," announced Activities Commissioner Bert Phillips.

Previously the board was used for publicity of the clubs on campus.

A revision of all rules for the use of the campi billboards will be announced in the next issue of the Gater.
